

PRESS RELEASE

Marcel Bogusch is now logistics industry manager at Schmersal

The Schmersal Group is seeking to expand its market presence in logistics

Wuppertal 1. March 2022. Since the start of the year, Marcel Bogusch has been industry manager for the logistics division of the Schmersal Group. With this new addition, the company hopes to further expand its market presence in this promising industry, and to increase turnover and growth.

Marcel Bogusch was previously employed by a renowned manufacturer operating in logistics and automation as a product manager, with responsibility for the launch of safe robot systems and new control system generations. His strengths include solid technical competence in all matters relating to the Machinery Directive.

Schmersal not only has a comprehensive range of safety switchgear devices, but also complete logistics solutions with carefully coordinated safety components. This allows Schmersal's safety solutions to be optimally adapted to the divergent applications in the logistics field. A positive in terms of the application-specific challenges in logistics: extensive systems that require intelligent networking concepts and high rates of turnover that impose correspondingly high demands on the failsafe performance of systems.

'I am delighted to be a part of the Schmersal team. I would like to put my previous professional experience to good use and to develop this target segment and raise awareness of the benefits of Schmersal's systems and solutions for logistics applications,' says Marcel Bogusch. 'Our objective is also to develop additional innovative, industry-specific safety solutions.'
